The School of Communications and Arts (ECA) is organized in eight departments where foreign students can take courses. The departments are: Department of Performing Arts (CAC); Department of Fine Arts (CAP); Department of Library Science and Documentation (CBD); Department of Communication and Arts (CCA); Department of Journalism and Publishing (CJE); Department of Music (CMU); Department of Public Relations, Advertising and Tourism (CRP); Department of Cinema, Radio and Television (CTR).

The students can take a maximum of 8 disciplines per semester. The list of subjects is available at the Jupiterweb system. Although we need a previous study plan, we offer two weeks, after the beginning of the academic semester, to the students make the necessary changes. All disciplines are taught in Portuguese.

Many disciplines have special curriculum requirements that students should take into account before submitting their applications. Therefore, the requests will be analyzed considering the Transcription of Records and the Study Plan.

Before the beginning of the academic semester, there will be a meeting to give some important information. The participation of the students is mandatory.

The University of São Paulo doesn't offer accommodation to exchange students.

Internship programs for exchange students in Brazil are not allowed by the University of São Paulo.

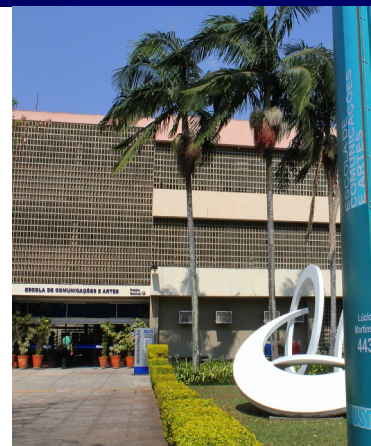

Please, note that exchange students must be covered by an international health insurance.
